To take advantage of this entitlement the holder of the Licensing Act 2003 Premises Licence must give notice to the licensing authority (Breckland Council) of your intention to make gaming machines available for use and pay the fee of £50.

The notification will continue without renewal but must remain in the same name as that of the holder of the Licensing Act 2003 Premises Licence. If the Premises Licence has been transferred a new notification will be required.

If you have correctly given notification you must comply with the provisions of the Gambling Commissions Code of Practice about the location and operation of machines. A copy of this code of practice can be obtained from Breckland Council or via the following link www.gamblingcommission.gov.uk.

The Gambling Act 2005 is based on the licensing objectives of:

- Preventing gambling from being a source of crime or disorder, being associated with crime or disorder or being used to support crime.
- Ensuring that gambling is conducted in a fair and open way; and
- Protecting children and other vulnerable persons from being harmed or exploited by gambling.

The automatic entitlement to machines can be removed if the provision of the machine is not reasonably consistent with the licensing objectives, if the premises are used mainly for gambling, if any offences under the Gambling Act 2005 have been committed on the premises or if the codes of practice are not complied with.
